They have a daughter old enough to be affianced and that of course makes it imperative for her mother to be the usual in age of all those women that Jeanne Granier incarnates to the great delight of the boulevards. It seems rather due to the exigencies of the story than to probability in this country that the actress holds a rehearsal of her play in person when it comes to preserving fruits. order that the guests may help her learn the speeches of her role.

The folly of transplanting such a harm is shown by the strange effects the rehearsal has on the young man betrothed to the daughter. In contrast to the perfunctory reading of the rest of this party he grows very dramatic. After the rehearsal he continues in the frame of mind which the play has aroused. He declares that he much prefers the actress to her daughter and begs the mother of his firmede to light out with him then and there. DON HERE FROM KANSASCITY.

Don's the Bog and They All Tramped It Here From the Middle West for Mr. Wolff's Health He's a Musician and the Walk Has Made Him Strong.

Don the dog and Dobbin the horse arrived at City Hall yesterday afternoon all the way from Kansas City on foot, and a kindly, even enthusiastic reception was given to them by the thousand or so affair of the kind. Don and Dobbin had been accompanied all the way, and on foot too, by Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Wolff.

The quartet left Kansas City on May 2. Dobbin drawing a little two wheel cart on which was mounted a packing case painted white and stuffed with food and a camp outfit. There was no particular reason why Don and Dobbin should start out on a 1,500 mile tramp, but they good naturedly agreed to do so when they learned that their man, Mr. Wolff, had been advised to take the tramp for the sake of his health and that Mrs. Wolff was going along to look after her husband's comfort

Don and Dobbin smiled and winked at each other when they heard this and naturally said

"But who's going to take care of her: sentry-go in front of their tent at night to scare away tramps and gobbuluns?"

Mr. Wolff, is an orchestra leader and a composer of music and became ailing with day. Then they will visit the observators the matter with Kansas City, and the doctor said three months exercise. and the doctor said three months exercise in the open air would make him come back as fit as his own fiddle.

There was nothing the matter with Don this place a layer of beans, then more sait dog. Mr. Wolff, who arrived in New York weighing the same as he did when he left Kansas City, is strong and hearty, however, and a clear cut likely looking young fellow. He composed a piece of music on the way and says it is descriptive of the scenes and incidents of the trip. When he gets home he's going to try it on his orchestra.
